Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 22 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Wet, windy in north at times, mostly fine elsewhere.

This Evening and Tonight:
Band of patchy rain and drizzle sinks south into Wales while heavy showers become more prolonged across the far north, with gales perhaps severe for Shetland. Elsewhere mainly fine, isolated fog in southern England.

Thursday:
Gales in far north easing but intermittent rain continuing for some northwestern parts. South Wales and southwest England may be drizzly for a time. Elsewhere mostly fine and rather warm.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Patchy rain at times for northern and western areas Friday. Elsewhere, mainly fine and warm throughout, though some rain or showers in places Saturday and Sunday, locally heavy, possibly thundery.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.